

Golfer's Elbow

MOVE OF THE MONTH AUGUST ISSUE 2011

Golfer's elbow, or medial epicondylitis, is a condition caused by over-stressing the tendons of the flexor muscles of the forearms. The repeated microscopic tears (microtrauma) that occur during a golf swing, a baseball pitch or even a weekend home-improvement project create inflammation in the tissues.

Download Golfer's Elbow